DESIGNER LUCY BOCK "This bathroom renovation took place in an original midcentury home in Kew, Melbourne. Built circa 1960s, the original bathroom comprised two separate rooms. The existing dividing wall was removed to create an open-plan, light-filled and luxurious setting, and the selection of finishes played an integral part in creating a contemporary bathroom. Natural limestone floors and benchtops, and white handmade wall tiles formed a soft backdrop for the subtle tints of pastel colours featured in the space. The simple layering of the custom stone tray on top of the stone benchtop created a place to anchor decorative objects and flowers." lucybock.com

A backdrop of white tiles with a parade of pastel hues imbues this bathroom with a soft femininity.
